By Sandra Eagleson

Additional counsel for extended day students and integration of east campus activities into those of the main campus were primary recommendations of the accreditation team, whose visit to Hartnell college resulted in a five-year accreditation.

According to Dr. J. F. Ching, college president, the committee recommended that office space for instructional and counseling staffs be enlarged and that early attention be given to enlarging the science, music, and art departments.

The complete report of the committee was given the board of trustees this week. Hartnell was commended for its faculty and administration, for the addition of a larger library, and for the enlargement of the counseling staff. The drama and music departments were praised.

During its December visit, the accreditation group attended classes, examined courses of study and talked with students and local businessmen.

"Courteous treatment received by committee members from the students is evidence of a willingness to accept responsibility."

Spring Prom Set For May 23

The Hartnell Spring prom will be held at the San Carlos hotel in Monterey May 23. A smorgasbord dinner at $6 per couple was approved by the students in a balloting held Tuesday and Wednesday to decide the type of dinner preferred by the students. The time of the dance will be announced later.

A prom queen will be elected by those attending the event. All Hartnell women who were not among the five finalists in the homecoming queen contest are eligible for prom queen. Four candidates will be chosen to represent the spring sports: tennis, baseball, golf and track.

Committees for the prom are being organized by Jane Ross. Meetings regarding all aspects of prom planning are held each week.

Full-Time Head Needed in Store

Hartnell student commission has decided that a permanent student store manager will be chosen to begin work this summer.

Promissory notes for which payment has not been made were also discussed at Tuesday's commission meeting. Chairman for the committee on payment of such notes, Darnell Herschbach, stated that students who do not pay their debts immediately will have their final grades withheld and, if they are participating in sports, they will not receive awards.

Trustees Okay Track Plans

Construction of an $8,660 track with a concrete curb was approved by the Hartnell college trustees Tuesday night, but not before an extensive debate among board and faculty members.

Awards Being Displayed In New Lounge Trophy Case

By John Fitzpatrick

The newest addition to the Hartnell campus is the new trophy case located in the main lounge of the student union. The new trophy case replaces the old case which was located near the administration office. The old case will be used by the art department for art displays.

The new trophy case cost $1,141.40 and was paid for by the student body from an allocated reserve fund which has been building up for several years, according to Miss June Handley, advisor.

The case is 12 feet 4 inches long, stands 7 feet 2 inches tall, and is 25 inches deep. It is made of natural finished ash to match the student union and of quarter-inch polished plate glass. It has nine adjustable shelves and four plate glass sliding doors which lock.

There are over 60 trophies and souvenirs in the new case. The honors, which date back to 1936 when Hartnell college was moved to its present location, were awarded to championship conference and tournament teams and to individuals.

Included are trophies won in football, basketball, baseball, track and tennis. Of the non-trophies, a rifle symbolizes the champion of the Hartnell-Marine football rivalry. The two teams met once, with the Panthers blanking Marine 15-0.

Transfer Units Gain Approval

College teachers are in agreement that 12 units of journalism courses may be transferred to four-year colleges from junior colleges if a one-year reporting course is included.

This was revealed in the California Intercollegiate Press and the California Journalism Association for Junior Colleges' 10th annual meeting at the University of Redlands in San Bernardino March 6-7.

Approximately 400 student delegates from the junior and four-year colleges in the state were represented.

Students participated in a "campus criticisms" workshop where they discussed problems of various college newspapers. Teachers attended a photography session in which speakers from Look magazine and the (Continued on Page 4)

"Lo and Behold" Is Next Play For Hartnell College Playhouse

The cast was selected last night for the next Hartnell college play, "Lo and Behold," which was written by John Patrick, author of "Teahouse of the August Moon."

The play is a comedy which involves a Nobel prize winner who has lived for many years on a meager diet to favor an ailing heart. After signing a will that leaves a third of his estate to his young doctor, a third to perpetuate his house as a sanctuary for his spirit, and the remaining third to the Harvard law school, he eats a heavy meal and dies happily.

Instead of the solitude he expected to find in his house, he is beset by spirits of an Indian

Science Topic Set For Fourth Panel Talk

The fourth in a series of panel discussions will be held at Hartnell April 3. The title of the discussion is, "What Do the Behavioral Sciences Tell Us About Man?"

Panelists include Dr. Dorothy Sproul, director of director of Monterey county psychiatric clinic, who will explain what man has learned about man's behavior through psychiatric theory and practice.

The second panelist will be Teresa McGrath, a former university instructor in sociology. Another panelist will be Dr. Edward Ryder, a geneticist from the U.S. agriculture research station. He will describe the factors of heredity that tend to influence behavior.

Concluding the panel will be Dr. Herbert Wiesenfeld of the Monterey county psychiatric clinic. He will explain how human behavior is derived from psychology, especially psychometrics.

The discussion will be moderated by Dr. Duane Sandgren, instructor of psychology at Hartnell. It will be held at noon in the student union.

Students are asked to bring any questions they might have to the discussion, according to Dr. Lionel Olsen, dean of student personnel.

The discussion will be of particular interest to students interested in political science, history, psychology, sociology and economics.

The last discussion of the series will be May 14. The title will be, "Should Capital Punishment be Abolished?"

Summer Jobs Are Available

By Judy Wong

With the approach of summer, many Hartnell students will be looking for jobs. This year, according to Mrs. Ann Harper, head of the Hartnell placement bureau, job opportunities appear very good.

The placement bureau has a directory listing the various girl and boy scout, YMCA, YWCA and private camps which have openings for counselors and leaders. Students must write for applications before April 15, since it takes four to six weeks for the camp authorities to check qualifications of the applicants.

For men, the state department of forestry has several jobs open in various stations. Applications will be accepted until the middle of April. Addresses may be secured at the placement office. As usual, the food processing plants in the Salinas and Santa Clara valleys need workers.

More Jobs Developing

For engineering and science student there are jobs with the state division of highways, the federal bureau of reclamation, and various federal government missile programs.

Announcements will be posted on the placement office bulletin board concerning recreational work on Salinas playgrounds. Many families in the Salinas, Arroyo Seco and Carmel valley areas need women to do housework or to care for children.

There are some sales jobs in downtown stores, and there are clerical positions in offices and at the court house. For further information students may consult Mrs. Harper at the placement office. Mrs. Harper urges everyone to keep up to date on the job opportunities which are being posted on the placement office bulletin board.

They are to be scheduled as follows: 8 a.m. classes, 8-8:50; 9 a.m., 8:55-9:45; 10 a.m., 9:50-10:40; 11 a.m., 10:45-11:35; assemblies, 11:40-12:20; noon, 12:25-1:15; 1 p.m., 1:20-2:10; 2 p.m., 2:15-3:05; 3 p.m., 3:10-4.

EDITORIAL

Education Detriments Cited

(Editor's Note: The following should not be construed as a direct or necessary criticism of Hartnell college. It may be regarded as food for thought for those concerned with the future of America.)

The idea of education has always been a part of the American dream. But somewhere along the path, when the dream was being translated into reality, the process of simply going to school replaced the real meaning of education. We look upon education today only a right, forgetting it is also a privilege and a challenge.

In our great leveling process, in our emphasis on equality, often at the cost of intruding on individual liberties, we have failed to consider that not all people are equally capable of being educated.

Too Many Duds in Collegiate Stockpile

Bluntly stated, the big problem is that there are too many people going to college who don't belong there, people unequipped with the basic emotional maturity and intellectual capacity to meet the strict demands inherent in the traditional educational process. The overcrowding and shortage of adequate facilities are in large measure directly traceable to the presence of this large body of placefillers.

When the legal pressures which keep a young person in school at about the age of college entrance, social pressures take over. The AB degree has come to be considered the master key to successful life, and has almost attained the position of a social necessity. That the methods used to achieve the degree have become debased means little. The degree is all.

The crowd thus flocks to college for an academic degree, not for an education. Furthermore, to accommodate this influx both the secondary schools and the universities have lowered their academic standards and have liberalized their process of selection. And so, many people who have no idea of what the purpose of a university really is are enrolled.

Colleges Becoming Personality Mills

What are the values most obvious in college life today? A student's social life and something vaguely known as "having fun" often takes precedence over academic matters. More attention is given to the cultivation of the personality than to books.

Aside from the nation and the world who will suffer in the long run from the aftermath of this college crowding, the greatest sufferers today are those students to whom education, in its finest sense, comes before all else. If classes are filled to their exclusion by people less competent than they; if academic standards are lowered to accommodate and satisfy the mere average; if a professor's consultation time is taken by the mediocre, then the university is failing the student.

Education must once again become and be recognized as the province of the educable minority. Only if admission requirements are raised, only if there is force de-emphasis on the social aspects of the university life can this be brought about. — From the Los Angeles Times.

A AND M . . .

The group also remarked, "The student body appeared to have excellent morale both as individuals and as a group," and that student government is "experiencing a healthy development."

Improvements noted since the committee's visit three years ago were the complete separation of the college administration from that of the high school, elimination of classes composed of both high school and college students, development of a more adequate counseling and guidance program, internal administrative changes such as the appointment of various deans, and revisions in curriculum development.

Committee Formed

The Hartnell college Inter-club council has announced formation of a planning committee for the student-sponsored spring carnival in May.

The committee is composed of Jean Marquez, chairman, and Ramona Insular, Sharon McGlashan, Ethel Boutte, Keith Miller, Gary Shirk and Alex Gallimore.

Campus Fun Criticized

By Bob Thompson

San Jose State Spartan Daily . . .

Indiana university Professor Jerome Ellison says we are making a playground out of college. He levels charges of marriage mills, country club atmosphere, minimum effort. He also states students of today are completely wrapped up in a series of weekend dances, queen contests, drunken frolics, water fights and sports car races.

Does this condition exist at Hartnell? If any students have an opinion on the subject, we would like to hear it. Address your comments to the Informer and drop them off in Room 9. Every letter will be appreciated.

ADVICE TO THE FEMALE—

A great many articles have been written on how the male should act and on qualities he should possess in order to attract the female.

Beggars can't be choosers; after all, it's not the poor innocent male who is trying to make a catch. It's the female. So she should be the one to worry about impressing the male.

Run Fellows, Run

In order to give the female a little insight on how to fulfill her fondest desire of capturing a mate, I have asked a few fellows who represent different groups on the campus what they are looking for in the way of feminine companionship. Student who spends all of his spare time in the library:

"I would like to find a girl with a beautiful figure who likes to read books and who enjoys good music."

Well-known Hartnell football player:

"I like variety."

Music major:

"Give me a girl who likes soft lights and fine music, and who is willing to go dutch."

"I want to be alone with a glass of wine, a loaf of bread and a broad."

Dramatists Observe Film Stars in Action

About 15 Hartnell drama students watched the filming of the Warner Brothers production, "Summer Place", at Point Lobos recently. The movie stars Richard Egan, Dorothy Malone, Sandra Dee and Troy Donahue.

The group met technicians, makeup artists and property personnel. Director Delmar Daves, was co-director of "Separate Tables".

Clams and Worms Found by Biologists

Marine animals in three different environments were studied by the marine biology class at Moss Landing beach, Moss Landing jetty and the Elkhorn slough mudflats March 5.

A large number of sandy beach pismo clams and gaper clams were collected. One of the highlights of the trip was the discovery of many one-to-two-foot, pink, sausage-shaped worms, commonly called "weenie worms." In order to reach these "weenie worms," the students had to dig about 10 inches down in the mud where the worms thrive.

Dr. Howard Feder, who accompanied the group, remarked, "the trip was highly successful and the students seemed to be very interested in the animals they saw; many of them returned with quite a collection of various marine forms."

IVCF Banquet Speaker Stresses Divine Guidance

Vaughn Shoemaker, syndicated editorial cartoonist of the New York Herald Tribune and twice winner of the Pulitzer prize, was the guest speaker at the Intervarsity Christian Fellowship banquet March 13 at the Tom restaurant in Salinas.

Shoemaker spoke of his life and how he became a newspaper cartoonist. He stressed the fact that he had no real talent nor real aim in life until he asked for divine guidance. He emphasized that God can do anything with and for people if only given the chance.

The speaker reproduced several of his cartoons for the 64 persons attending the banquet. He has received eight freedom foundation awards and four national safety council awards.

New officers are Ray Millarke, president; Lucille Johnson, vice president; Lillian Ito, secretary; Lee Ann Sims, treasurer; Gary Shirk, ICC representative. Nancy Willis, Diana Enochs and Max Callao, are social activities chairmen.
